

A MAJOR ONE DAY CONFERENCE ORGANISED BY NIESR

Disadvantage in the labour market: diversity and commonality in causes, consequences and redress

Disadvantage in the labour market takes various forms: unemployment, lower pay, low job achievement, insecure employment. Its causes are diverse, including changes in labour market demand, discrimination, organisational structures and role differences. Policies to counter disadvantage vary in their nature and effectiveness. This conference presents leading research on a range of aspects of disadvantage in order to explore the degree of commonality in causes and consequences and to explore policies to tackle disadvantage.
