The title "A Glance..." says it all - what we got in this lecture was a quick look at a vast subject. It was due to our instructor's ~~clear~~ presentation, clear but in depth that we progressed to some degree from "knowing" to "understanding." A corollary, an expansion, a further exposition of hermeneutic would I think.

Very interesting & thought provoking - 2 suggestions (1) Course description did not, to me, accurately reflect the course content - it was much more of a "philosophical" course. I expected more "language" orientation (2) I would have liked to hear more of Mr. F. planned to teach & less from the class. He was very good at answering questions but I felt he muddled out on a lot. What is to be a desirable course (a) only as (b) set room up to facilitate. I would liked him to have

*Instructor very good & patient with questions, but the flow & organization, and even main point of the course, got lost because of the interruptions & digressions. I suggest 40-45 minutes of lecture & 15-20 minutes for questions at end.
It tickled the brain.

Very interesting topic, Professor very learned on subject and has ~~surrounding~~ good delivery, good pace, good reinforcement. My only criticism would be to keep the class from so much participation esp that which has taken ~~things off~~ a course. I came to hear the presenter not the members of the class. I feel as tho' I haven't heard all that was prepared for the week - & yes I'd be interested in cont'g. in more study on this topic

A great subject and a very good lecturer. I think with so many philosophies & concepts we needed more time to explore the relevant ideas & concepts and to become aware of a greater extent. The unifying thread of hermeneutics (??) and its implications in various manner.
