

News from: Lugano Summer School of Systems Design

Are you interested in new ideas on how to promote ethical practice in management, consulting, and research? A unique event on this topic -- a combination of summer school and research conference -- will be held in June 2007 at the University of Lugano in Switzerland

Lugano, Switzerland, 24 January 2007 -- The Lugano Summer School, University of Lugano, Switzerland, in conjunction with the Business Ethics Center of Corvinus University, Budapest, Hungary, organizes a Young Researchers' Conference on

"BUSINESS ETHICS, PROFESSIONAL ETHICS, AND ETHICS OF WHOLE SYSTEMS"

Dates: 18-29 June 2007

Place: University of Lugano, Switzerland

The aim is to present and discuss a broad spectrum of contemporary ideas on business and professional ethics, with special emphasis on methodological foundations and tools for supporting ethical practice.

The format combines the broadness of inputs that you can get from a conference with the didactic guidance you expect from a Summer School. A publication opportunity is also offered.

The event is open to graduate students at the Masters or Ph.D. level as well as to practicing researchers or professionals with demonstrated qualifications and experience in applied disciplines such as business and public sector management, information systems design, industrial and systems engineering, environmental design and management, operational research, consultancy, public policy analysis, social planning, evaluation research, and others. A good level of proficiency in English is indispensable. Formal application is required. Application deadline: 31 March 2007

Host Faculty:

Werner Ulrich, University of Fribourg, Switzerland, and The Open University, Milton Keynes, UK
Laszlo Zsolnai, Corvinus University of Budapest, Hungary

Visiting Faculty:

Jane Collier, Cambridge University, Cambridge, UK
Frank Dixon, Innovest Strategic Value Advisors, Inc., New York, USA
Knut Ims, Norwegian School of Economics and Business Administration, Bergen, Norway
Ulrich Thielemann, University of St. Gallen, Switzerland

For information about the event, including a printer-friendly flyer and a registration form, please visit the School web site at www.lss.lu.unisi.ch