

School of Social Work and Psychosocial Sciences

The School is a highly productive and supportive research-active community and was awarded a 5 rating in the last four RAE exercises. The Centre for Research on the Child and Family has become a focus for national and international research excellence. There are existing strong research links with the School of Education and the Faculty of Health and the potential for building new research links, for example with the group of experimentalists in the Schools of Economics and Environmental Sciences.

Senior Lecturer/Reader in Child and Family Policy
£41,545 to £48,161 per annum (wef 1/8/07)

Ref: ATR687

Applicants are invited to apply for a strategic new appointment to expand research activity in the field of Child and Family Policy at UEA. You will join researchers in the Centre for Research on the Child and the Family based in the School of Social Work and Psychosocial Sciences, developing cross-Faculty research with the Faculties of Social Sciences and Health.

You will have an established research portfolio with publications suitable for submission to the Social Work/Social Policy RAE panel and a proven ability to raise external research income. Candidates with policy interests in child well-being and poverty, parenting, and family and children's services are encouraged. You will play a full part in the development of the School's academic profile and will have a half time teaching load in research methods in the ESRC approved MA Child and Family Research and Doctoral programmes, and in the taught postgraduate and undergraduate programmes where appropriate. You will need to have a strong Social Sciences degree and a PhD.

Closing date: 17 April 2007.

Interview date: 3 May 2007.

SENIOR LECTURER IN PSYCHOLOGY
LECTURER IN PSYCHOLOGY

Ref: ATR689

Ref: ATR688

The University of East Anglia is seeking to appoint a Senior Lecturer and a Lecturer in Psychology, who will join the teaching team of the BSc in Psychosocial Sciences and play an important role in the development of a new BSc Psychology Degree. The new degree will be built on the foundation of the existing BSc Psychosocial Sciences degree, an innovative programme that was the top rated psychology programme in the 2005 and 2006 National Student Surveys. The University is committed to having a strong psychology degree at UEA and it is looking for outstanding academics who can help the School with this exciting development.

The School is flexible as to the research and teaching interests of the appointments; however both post holders will need to be able and prepared to contribute to teaching research methods as this runs throughout the programme. We are also interested in individuals who have research and teaching interests in areas such as health psychology, children and families, abnormal psychology or forensic psychology, so as to maintain the distinctive and successful psychosocial and applied nature of the programme.

Senior Lecturer in PsychologyRef: ATR689*£41,454 to £48,181 per annum (wef 1/8/07) depending on qualifications and experience

As Senior Lecturer, you will need to have an established research portfolio and a proven ability to raise external research income with publications suitable for submission to the RAE. You should have substantial and successful teaching experience in higher education including successful experience of supervision of PhD students. You will be responsible for bringing in research funding undertaking research, generating high quality publications, playing a leading role in the management and administration of the undergraduate degree programme, and teaching and advising students and supervising research students.

Closing date: 11 April 2007.Interview date: 27 April 2007.*Lecturer in Psychology*Ref: ATR688*£34,813 to £40,335 per annum (wef 1/8/07) depending on qualifications and experience

As Lecturer, you will be responsible for teaching and advising students and supervising research students. You will be expected to develop a research profile consistent with the high standards of the School, bringing in research funding, undertaking research and generating high quality publications. It is essential you have a PhD in Psychology, have experience of teaching undergraduate psychology, are committed to and able to contribute to high quality teaching and research, administration and the general life of the School.

Closing date: 2 April 2007.Interview date: 17 April 2007.

Further particulars and an application form can be obtained from the University's web page at: <http://www.uea.ac.uk/hr/jobs/> or by e-mail at: hr@uea.ac.uk or by calling the answerphone on 01603 593493 or by mail to the Human Resources Division, University of East Anglia, Norwich NR4 7TJ. Please quote the appropriate reference number.

