We are seeking to recruit an experienced and committed researcher with expertise in the area of race/ethnicity and health and/or 'cultural competence' in health service provision, to join an established team within the Centre for Health & Social Care Research, Sheffield Hallam University. The successful applicant will have a background in social science, public health or a health profession as well as a robust track record of undertaking and disseminating research in this area. For appointment at the level of senior/principal research fellow applicants will normally be expected to hold a relevant doctoral degree, demonstrate previous research grant capture, a track record of publications in relevant peer-reviewed journals together with experience of supervising doctoral students. The researcher will contribute to exciting ongoing projects as well as developing his/her own portfolio of research work. We particularly welcome applications from individuals who have the language skills and cultural awareness to facilitate community-based research with minority ethnic populations.

The post will probably involve working with children or other vulnerable members of society so the successful candidate will be required to apply for a disclosure via the Criminal Records Bureau.
