Our Sacred Landscapes

23 April 2008, 6.30 - 8.30pm

School of Jewellery, Vittoria Street, Birmingham, B1 3PA

Please join us for conversation on the heritage of belief and religious diversity followed by light refreshments and a chance to chat.

How do sacred acts and religious beliefs impact on our built heritage? Where can we find the buildings and landscapes, big and small, of Britain's diverse religious cultures? These are some of the questions the speakers will address. We invite your thoughts on this important aspect of our heritage.

The event will coincide with 2008 International Sites and Monuments Day, on the theme 'Religious Heritage and Sacred Places'.

Conversations is a new series of events which explores different aspects of how past and present cultural activities influence and change our historic surroundings.

The International Council on Monuments and Sites is an independent organisation whose work is dedicated to the conservation, care and understanding of the world's historic monuments and landscapes. ICOMOS-UK undertakes this work in the UK.
