

UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD

The School of Interdisciplinary Area Studies African Studies Centre

Departmental Lecturership in African Studies (full-time, fixed term)

Salary between £27,466 and £33,780 p.a.

The African Studies Centre seeks applications for a full-time, fixed term Departmental Lecturer in African Studies. The Lecturership is tenable from 1 October 2008 until 30 June 2010 (21 months). The post-holder will be associated with St Antony's College as the Atiku Junior Research Fellow. The lecturer will assist in teaching, supervision, and marking on the MSc in African Studies, at the discretion of the Director of the African Studies Centre. Teaching will focus on the core courses in the MSc. The lecturer will also be encouraged to develop his/her research, to publish in peer-reviewed journals and books, and submit research proposals to outside funders. Preference may be shown for candidates who have expertise in eastern and/or southern Africa.

Candidates will be considered on the basis of the selection criteria outlined in the further particulars which can be obtained by emailing vacancies@area.ox.ac.uk, by visiting www.admin.ox.ac.uk/fp/, or by telephoning 01865 284991. Candidates are asked to submit postal applications (five copies, except for candidates applying from overseas, who need send only one) in the form of a letter which addresses the selection criteria, a full curriculum vitae, and an outline of research interests in African Studies, and to ask two referees to write in support of their application, to The Administrator, School of Interdisciplinary Area Studies, 12 Bevington Road, Oxford, OX2 6LH, no later than 18 July 2008.

The University of Oxford is an Equal Opportunities Employer