

MIGHEALTHNET

Information network on good practice in health care for migrants and minorities

The MIGHEALTHNET project will offer easy access to a dynamically evolving body of knowledge and a virtual network of expertise in the field of migrant health. This can be drawn upon when trying to develop good practices, and will help health care services meet the challenge of providing adequate care to increasingly multicultural European populations.

17 European countries have been involved in the creation of country-specific, interactive information websites (wikis) designed to enable expert knowledge-sharing.

You will find general information on migration and health, good practice and centres of expertise; as well as specific documentation of specific migrant and minority groups such as African migrants, Middle Eastern migrants, Asian migrants, traveller communities and others.

The UK MIGHEALTHNET website is www.mighealth.net/uk

Queen Mary
University of London

MIGHEALTHNET

Who is MIGHEALTHNET for?

- Migrants and minority groups
- Health care professionals
- Policy makers
- Researchers
- Educators
- Representatives of migrants and minority groups

Further information

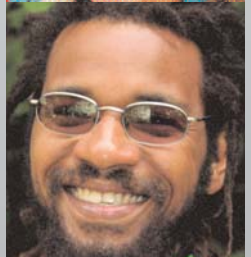

To find out more, please contact:

Nasir Warfa

Centre for Psychiatry
Wolfson Institute of Preventive Medicine
Tel: 020 7882 2035
email: n.warfa@qmul.ac.uk

Bertine de Jongh

Centre for Psychiatry
Wolfson Institute of Preventive Medicine
Tel: 020 7882 2013 (Thursdays)
email: b.de-jongh@qmul.ac.uk

www.mighealth.net/uk