

Preston College is a large and successful Tertiary College serving the city of Preston and central Lancashire. The College serves a population of approximately 250,000. In 2008/09 the College has an income target of approximately £34 million. The College operates from one main site in Fulwood on the northern edge of the City with provision for Visual and Performing Arts at the College's Park Campus a short distance away. A network of outreach centres enables the College to deliver educational programmes in the heart of its local communities, including city-centre premises.

The College offers a broad curriculum in all areas of learning except land-based qualifications. Higher Education programmes are offered in conjunction with the University of Central Lancashire. Student progression across the College's programmes is good.

The College's mission is to: "Inspire learners to develop skills, knowledge and understanding that will contribute to a successful economy and society".

The College has received full Centre of Vocational Excellence recognition in Retail and Distributive Trades. Charter Mark recognition was gained in 2002 and has been re-accredited since together with Investors in People status. The College was one of the first further education institutions in the area to be accredited with the Careers Quality Kite mark. College publications regularly win awards including the HEIST Gold Award and the FE First Award.

The North Regional Occupational Health Nurse Forum is growing from strength to strength. It is a pro-active group and its members meet 3 times annually. The meetings centralise around Occupational Health issues from a very broad based perspective. On the 7 December I am delighted to inform you that Jan Maw is coming to meet the group to discuss her role and also to discuss National issues in relation to Occupational Health. Jan is presently seconded to the RCN as a Public Health Nurse Advisor and under her remit is the Occupational Health Agenda. She does however continue to lead the on line Master OHN at Sheffield University.

If you wish to become a member of the North Regional Occupational Health Nurse Forum Group please contact Dr Angela Hammond on 01772 225 170.
