

Hybrid Identities

Theoretical and Empirical Examinations • Edited by Keri E. Iyall Smith and Patricia Leavy

Combining theoretical and empirical pieces, this book explores the emerging theoretical work seeking to describe hybrid identities—transnational, double consciousness, gender, diaspora, and others—while also illustrating the application of these theories in empirical research.

Marx, Critical Theory, and Religion

A Critique of Rational Choice Edited by Warren S. Goldstein

This volume collects essays by scholars employing Marxist frameworks to analyze religion. The authors engage in a critique of positivism, uncritical praise of the market, and one-dimensional conception of rationality of the rational choice theory of religion.

Dialectic of Solidarity

Labor, Antisemitism, and the Frankfurt School • Mark P. Worrell

During World War II it appeared that American workers in uniform had all that was required to defend democracy. But did the ideology of the war align with the ideas of American workers? This unique, multi-dimensional view of the political imagination of the American worker presents a complex study of war and ideology.

Liberal Modernity and its Adversaries

Freedom, Liberalism, and Antiliberalism in the 21st Century Milan Zafirovski

This book seeks to defend liberal democracy from its conservative adversaries and rehabilitates much-maligned liberalism as the ideal system of liberty in relation to anti-liberalism as one of un-freedom.

The Future of Religion

Toward a Reconciled Society Edited by Michael R. Ott

In the socio-historical context of the highly secular, neo-liberal and neo-conservative globalization movement, the question of the social meaning and relevancy of religion has entered directly into the contemporary discourse on the future of humanity.

Marx's Scientific Dialectics

A Methodological Treatise for a New Century • Paul Paolucci

A thorough investigation into the relationship between scientific method and dialectical thought in Marx's work, this book brings new insight to the methodological principles that animate his writings.

Imperialism, Neoliberalism, and Social Struggles in Latin America

Edited by Richard A. Dello Buono and José Bell Lara

This collection of works by prominent Latin Americanists examines the region's move beyond the neoliberal era. Populism in power, conservative backlash, social movements from below, and the constraints of global capital are all explored in this essential text.

Globalization and the Environment

Edited by Andrew Jorgenson and Edward Kick

These essays present environmental dynamics in areas as diverse as Ancient Egypt and the modern Amazon for readers who are new to the world-systems approach and for all those interested in recent efforts to link environmental outcomes and antecedents to global processes.

Culture, Power, and History

Edited by Stephen Pfohl, Aimee Van Wagenen, Patricia Arend, Abigail Brooks, and Denise Leckenby

This volume's theoretical meditations and empirical studies include essays tracing marketing and advertising to children, the production of gendered subjectivity in maquiladora factories, the racialized economic history of the construction of the Chicago School of sociology, and the normalization of cosmetic plastic surgery in contemporary America.

Transforming Globalization

Challenges and Opportunities in the Post 9/11 Era • Edited by Bruce Podobnik and Thomas Reifer

This book examines the emergence of a multifaceted resistance to neoliberal globalization. The authors describe how workers, environmentalists, human rights activists, and a wide variety of other groups have united in protest against institutions such as the WTO, the IMF, and the World Bank.

Race and Ethnicity

Across Time, Space, and Discipline • Rodney D. Coates

In Coates' collection, scholars dare to contemplate, evaluate and analyze race and ethnicity in radical new ways. They go past the ideological constraints that normally limit such discourse by disciplinarian boundaries and disciplinarian myopia.
