

The Department of Geography at the University of Bonn, Germany, invites applications for a tenured position

W3 Professorship in Geography section of Economic Geography

in succession of Prof. Gernot Grabher. The position is to be filled starting with the summer semester 2010.

We are looking for a person who can teach human geography in all its aspects. The candidate should have a strong national and international research record in Economic Geography. We are looking for an innovative geographer interested in cooperating with environmental sciences and willing to contribute to the research initiatives of the Department of Geography and of the geo-scientific research cooperation ABC/J (Aachen, Bonn, Cologne, Jülich).

Formal requirements are regulated by § 36 Hochschulgesetz (HG NRW)

The University of Bonn is an equal opportunities employer. Preference will be given to suitably qualified women or handicapped people, all other considerations being equal.

Applicants for the academic position are expected to send a CV including teaching experience, research interests and a list of publications.

Address applications to: Chairman of the Earth Sciences subject group, Prof. Dr. N. Froitzheim, Meckenheimer Allee 166, 53115 Bonn, Germany. Please send the material also in digital form.

The deadline for applications is 15.10.2009.