

LECTURER/SENIOR LECTURER IN HUMAN GEOGRAPHY

School of Geography, Environment &
Earth Sciences

Wellington, NZ

We are seeking a Human Geographer (economic and/or population) to join our leading research and teaching programme (ranked first in New Zealand in the 2006 national PBRF research assessment round).

The successful candidate will hold a PhD in Human Geography, or closely related discipline and will have an internationally-recognised publication record as well as a proven track record of high quality teaching and supervision. We will actively consider junior applicants who have already begun to establish a strong research record.

The successful candidate will be expected to teach and/or coordinate undergraduate and postgraduate Human Geography courses, supervise postgraduate students and contribute to the effective functioning of the programme.
