

Main Focus: Dealing with Unemployment -

Invitation for Proposals for Research in Salzburg

The international research center for social and ethical questions (ifz) in Salzburg will be focusing on the theme “dealing with unemployment” from April to June 2010. We are inviting three researchers and scholars to join us in exploring this topic. We are looking for researchers who will creatively address issues of unemployment and write a publishable article related to dealing with unemployment during their stay in Salzburg. The center's working languages are German and English.

We offer visiting researchers

An ambitious, interdisciplinary, and international group of young researchers
A prominent workplace overlooking the center of Salzburg
Time and space for intensive reflection and writing
Centrally located lodging
A stipend of 400 € per month
Opportunities to publish research results

What we request from researchers

Interest in cooperating with our interdisciplinary team
Interest in engaging socially relevant questions
Openness and ability in communication
Systematic working out of one's own ideas and interests
Engaged participation in the weekly research seminar and the conference “Resilience and Unemployment” that will take place from May 18-21, 2010
Presentation of research results in the seminar
Writing a publishable article

Researchers are also invited to apply for the summer and autumn of 2010

Further projects for 2010 include “Reduction” (June-July) and “Resilience in regions and businesses” (September-December). For further information visit www.ifz-salzburg.at or subscribe to our newsletter.

Applications

Send a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, and short description of research topic to kontakt@ifz-salzburg.at. Inquiries are welcome.

The ifz

The ifz is an Institute of Advanced Studies in Socioethics, which focuses on contemporary issues. It cooperates with the Center for Ethics and Poverty Research (University Salzburg). Further information at <http://www.ifz-salzburg.at>