

Elizabeth Duff and Miranda Dodwell

Location, location, location: making choice of place of birth a reality

Contact details

Florence Nightingale School of Nursing & Midwifery

Waterloo Campus
James Clerk
Maxwell Building
57 Waterloo Road
London SE1 8WA

Please contact seminar organiser:

Professor Debra Bick
debra.bick@kcl.ac.uk

Elizabeth Duff joined the NCT – National Childbirth Trust – in 2009 as a Public Policy Officer, after extensive experience of representing the NCT as a volunteer both locally and nationally.

Previously she held the post of Communications Manager for the International Confederation of Midwives, following earlier work as a healthcare journalist, and also has a role with the Iolanthe Midwifery Trust.

Miranda Dodwell set up the BirthChoiceUK website in 2001 to help women choose where to have their baby. She has been a consumer representative for the Healthcare Care Commission maternity services review and the development of the English maternity dataset. Her research interests lie in the analysis of maternity data and choice of place of birth.

Date: Thursday 14 January 2010

Time: 17.30 – 19.00

Venue: Room G79 Franklin-Wilkins Building,
Waterloo Campus, Stamford Street

All welcome