

Date: Thursday, 18th February

Time: 7 pm - 9.30 pm

- Building Fragments, 2009 (40 min)
- Delhi City Symphony, 2009 (20 min)
- Q&A
- Bar and network till 11 pm

Venue: The Hub, Kings Cross
34b York Way, London N1 9AB

Tickets £10, £6

More information and booking:

<http://globalcitysymphony.eventbrite.com>

Big Bang Lab cultural action for social change

www.bigbang-lab.com

info@bigbang-lab.com

Sergio López Figueroa

Founder and Director

skype: kinoscore

Mob. +44 (0)7811458779

video channel

www.vimeo.com/bigbanglab

twitter

www.twitter.com/bigbanglab

What's wrong with culture? The value of the intangible now! CSR as Cultural Social Responsibility Film screening and networking event

Come and join us for an open discussion and the premiere in London of Delhi City Symphony

Why is culture outside of CSR or under represented by social enterprises?

Are cultural enterprises committed to social change?

What is the common language of CSR, Cultural and Social Enterprises?

This event explore these issues and the multidisciplinary approach of Big Bang Lab to Cultural Heritage as innovation strategy towards social change, sustainability and socio-economic development. Global City Symphony, is Big Bang Lab's development of CSR as Cultural Social Responsibility programme. A hybrid partnership programme across urban regeneration, intercultural dialogue and global citizenship looking at the opportunities to improve social inclusion and equality through international links between cities in the world.

Big Bang Lab is a social-cultural enterprise and creative development agency based in London working internationally from innovation consultancy to production on community engagement, creative learning and global citizenship across film, music and heritage.

Specialized in the creative use of audiovisual archives and participatory programmes, our aim is to contribute to long term sustainability across the cultural, religious and age divide.

We are the creators of CSR as Cultural Social Responsibility. Global City Symphony is our starting point of that journey. We are creating a network of individuals and organizations passionate about culture and development in the UK and internationally.