

Diversity in Health and Care

The key journal for all professionals and researchers concerned with equitable health and care service provision to diverse social groups in all countries and settings.

Editors:

Paula McGee - Professor of Nursing, Birmingham City University

Mark RD Johnson - Professor of Diversity in Health and Social Care, De Montfort University

Diversity in Health and Care aims to provide open, accessible space for challenging boundaries and orthodoxies, and a platform for dialogue on:

- access to services
- promoting health and reducing inequalities
- promoting patient and staff satisfaction and user involvement

Diversity here includes (but is not limited to) race, culture and ethnicity, sexual orientation, gender, migrants, carers, disabilities, spirituality, and underserved or marginalised populations, but also extends to a wide variety of care settings and multidisciplinary professional practices. The journal specifically seeks to address the requirements of the Equalities and Human Rights Commission and the need for health services to develop equality impact assessments and strategies.

Indexed in: Social Care Online, British Nursing Index, Ulrich's International Periodicals Directory, Health and Social Care Abstracts, CINAHL, CSA Sociological Abstracts, CSA Social Services Abstracts and DH-Data. Scanned by Cochrane and Campbell Collaboration 'Equity' fields.

Diversity in Health and Care

Submissions welcomed:

- research papers addressing any aspect of diversity, including evaluative studies and methodological debates
- practice papers providing examples of culturally competent practice, or addressing the practicalities, policy or management aspects of delivering services to members of diverse groups
- education papers concerned with improving or evaluating initial or continued professional development education and training to address diversity concerns
- debate papers addressing key issues in diversity or focussing on under-researched topics
- knowledge-sharing reports, including book, website, video and other resource reviews, and papers on specific initiatives to improve practice.

We especially welcome papers exploring the international dimensions of diversity across and within cultures.
