

Anthropology in London Day – 2011

Values of Knowledge

University College London, Department of Anthropology, 14 Taviton Street, WC1H 0BW
20 June 2011 from 9 am

Opening session:

Maurice Bloch (LSE) 'Why participant observation is wonderful', and
Roger Sansi-Roca (Goldsmiths College) 'On Anthropological Optimism'

Anthropology in London is a platform for anthropologists of all London colleges and universities to meet and share ideas arising from their current research. This year's conference (organised under the aegis of Brunel University) is based on the theme 'Values of Knowledge'.

The conference is free to members of London's colleges and universities (staff and students), and lunch will be provided, but registration is required: email sk111@soas.ac.uk, confirming your institutional affiliation.

The Funktionalists (band from the London School of Economics) will be playing on the night.

For further details and the full programme see <http://www.soas.ac.uk/anthropology/anthropology-in-london-day---2011/>

