

UCL Cultural Consultation Service for Students & Staff (CCS)

Co-directors: Dr. Sushrut Jadhav & Dr. Caroline Selai

Background

UCL prides itself on being a global, culturally diverse and vibrant university.

UCL values the rich heritage of our staff and students. We are also aware of inter-cultural challenges and social conflicts experienced by students and staff at Universities in the UK.

That is why we at UCL have launched a unique service: The CCS.

What is the UCL Cultural Consultation Service?

The CCS aims to enhance learning and teaching outcomes for students and staff facing cross-cultural and social conflicts.

How can we help?

Our services will include inter-cultural learning, and expert advice on social and cultural issues. Every meeting is confidential, and held in an informal, friendly and relaxed atmosphere. We also provide consultations for higher learning institutions, health care services, and corporate organisations in UK and abroad. In doing so, we will draw upon the dynamic cultural capital and expertise of our staff and students.

How can you contact us?

Please email with your enquiry to: culture.consult@ucl.ac.uk

We are based at 4 Taviton Street, London WC1H 0BT, UK.

About us

Dr. Sushrut Jadhav, Clinician & Medical Anthropologist, UCL

Dr. Caroline Selai, Senior Lecturer in Clinical Neuroscience. Expertise in advising staff and students experiencing inter-personal difficulties across UCL.

