

An Invitation From The Trustees, Staff & Volunteers At Kew Bridge Steam Museum

Following generous support from the Heritage Lottery Fund and our partners Thames Water we are ready to unveil our proposed plans for a £2.2 million family friendly re-development of the Museum to improve it further as one of London's unique visitor attractions, celebrating the amazing story of London's Water Supply and the people, objects and history behind it which span over 2000 years.

Our 'Project Aquarius' proposals will include; rebranding the Museum to reflect its heritage water-works theme, new educational displays across all areas bringing the history of the pumping station and its engines to life, a major new gallery exhibition on London's water supply; past, present and future, new education facilities, new free access cafe & visitor shop, new fun watery interactive exhibits & working models, new historic electric pumping machinery display, new community & exhibition space, major landscaping works, completion of historic building repairs and a new locomotive shed.

We want to increase our visitor and volunteer numbers to help ensure this amazing Museum continues to flourish, fully involving the local community with a range of new exhibitions and regular wide ranging themed events. This is your personal invitation to see and hear our presentation proposals and more importantly tell us what you think.

Museum & Proposals open from 6.00pm onwards to view on Wednesday 15th February 2012. Presentation starts at 7.00 pm.

Light refreshments will be served.

If you can't make it on the evening, then visit the Museum Tuesday to Sunday 11.00 am till 4.00pm, where you can see the displays on view. Bring this invitation for FREE entry- valid until the 24th February. Information and plans are also on our website where you can leave comments in our feedback section.
