

CONTENTS

Prologue

Part I

Chapter 1. Trends that Point Toward a New Synthesis

- A. The Tragedy of the Market
- B. New Governance Models on the Internet
- C. Imagining New Types of Governance that Go Beyond Market and State

Chapter 2. The Human Right to a Clean and Healthy Environment

Chapter 3. The Quest for a New Rights-based Pathway

- A. Intergenerational Environmental Rights
- B. Nature's Environmental Rights
- C. Four Systemic Complications

Chapter 4. Making the Conceptual Transition to the New Paradigm

- A. The Power of Human Rights
- B. The Potential of Vernacular Law
- C. The Necessity of Self-Organized Governance and Collaboration in Complex Adaptive Systems

Part II

Chapter 5. The Commons as a Model for Ecological Governance

- A. What Is the Commons?
- B. A Brief History of Commons Law and the Right to the Environment
- C. Social Scientists Rediscover the Commons

Chapter 6. The Rise of the Commons Movement Globally

- A. Salient Contemporary Commons
- B. Tensions between Modern State Law and the Commons

Chapter 7. Imagining a New Architecture of Law and Policy to Support the Ecological Commons

- A. Internal Governance Principles of Commons
- B. Macro-Principles and Policies to Guide the State/Market in Supporting the Commons Sector

Chapter 8. Catalytic Strategies for Achieving Green Governance

- A. Vernacular-Law Commons
- B. "Private-law Work-arounds"
- C. Localism and Municipal Law as a Vehicle for Protecting Commons

- D. Federal and Provincial Governments as Supporters of Commons Formation and Expansion
- E. Expand and Strengthen the Public Trust Doctrine
- F. State Trustee Commons
- G. Eco-digital Innovations: Crowdsourcing, Participatory Sensing, Wikis, and More
- H. Establish Commons Trusts to Manage Common Assets and Distribute Revenues
- I. State Chartering of New Types of Commons Trusts
- J. New Types of Multilateral Frameworks that Can Manage Large-scale Common-pool Resources

Epilogue

Appendix: Draft United Nations General Assembly Declaration on the Human Right to Commons- and Rights-based Ecological Governance

Addendum: The Legal Status of the Human Right to a Clean and Healthy Environment