

The Art of Participation

A seminar exploring how particularly arts can improve wellbeing

Tullie House Museum and Art Gallery, Carlisle
Thursday 9th May 9.30am-4.00pm

The seminar is ideal for third sector and public sector organisations looking to develop new creative opportunities for their clients, arts organisations looking to reach new audiences and artists looking to develop an awareness of current participatory arts practice.

The sessions will cover work with:

- Older people and dementia
- Learning disability
- Drug and alcohol misuse
- Mental health | Working in prisons

By attending delegates will gain:

- An insight of how participatory arts can benefit their client group
- An understanding of the barriers to engagement
- The opportunity to talk directly to the artists
- An opportunity to observe best practice
- A chance to network with other delegates

Price: £30 including a light lunch
