The BERA Post-compulsory and Lifelong Learning SIG has organised three seminars over this academic year to celebrate the 40th anniversary of BERA. They will focus on Vocational Education and Training: Policy, Pedagogy and Research. The first seminar in London will be followed by seminars in Birmingham and Durham (Confirmed speakers include: Professor Ann-Marie Bathmaker, University of Birmingham; Emeritus Professor Denis Gleeson, University of Warwick and CRADLE, University of Wolverhampton; Dr Roy Canning, University of Stirling; and Dr Ian Finlay, University of Oxford).

We look forward to welcoming colleagues to reflect on the past, present and future of this diverse and fast changing sector and engage in discussion on how we may take forward research in this field. The seminars will be of interest to practitioners, leaders, researchers and policy makers whose work may be related to adult and community institutions, FE and sixth form colleges, HEIs, private providers and voluntary organisations.

The themes of the London seminar include the relationship between education and trends with the economy and policy perspectives on initial vocational education and training.

Price: BERA members £20.00 and Non-BERA members £45.00
