

Seminar: 29th April, 2014

International Bargaining and Regulation

Harold Hankins Building Room 10.05 (10th Floor)
Manchester Business School, University of Manchester, M13 9PL

A half-day seminar to explore current thinking and experience in international collective bargaining and regulation. The seminar is one of a sequence of events that follow GLI's International Summer Schools, enabling trade unionists and academics to explore and discuss some of the key issues in greater depth. The seminars are organised as a partnership between the Global Labour Institute in Manchester, the European Work and Employment Research Centre at Manchester Business School and the Critical Labour Studies network.
