

From EMANCIPATION to WINDRUSH

The period from 1838 to 1948 saw some changes within the Caribbean. After Emancipation Day, 1st August, Africans women went out in search of their sons and daughters who had been taken away to other sugar plantations, and who did not see their mothers and fathers again. The women re-united 'the African family' which had been dismantled by enslavers during the previous 200 years. For decades families struggled to make a living, but many made little or no economic progress.

COME ALONG AND HEAR THIS PRESENTATION BY ARTHUR TORRINGTON

Tuesday 21st OCTOBER 2014 @ 6.30pm

City Hall, Greater London Assembly, The Queen's Walk, London, SE1 2AA

ADMISSION FREE

For more information: windrush.event@gmail.com

Text your confirmation of attendance to:

07737241437

