

Registration

I would like to participate in the symposium Choosing the Green Way – Sustainable Strategies in Cultural Heritage on May 4th, 2015 at the Berlin Museum of Medical History.

Name _____
Surname _____
Institution _____
Adress _____

Mail _____

- I will attend
- I will not attend

the meet and greet farewell event.

The proof of registration fee payment is attached to this registration.

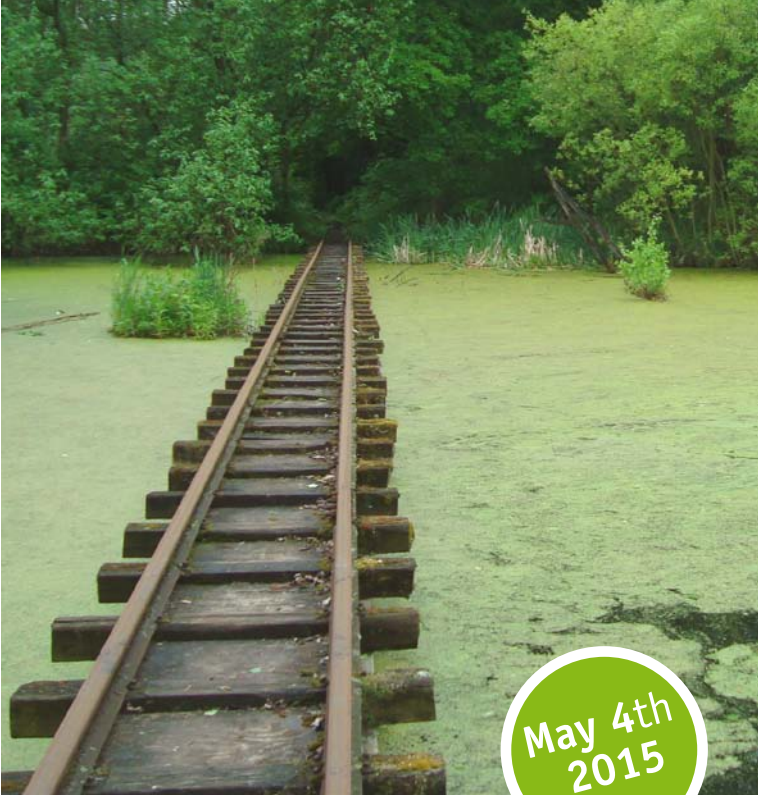

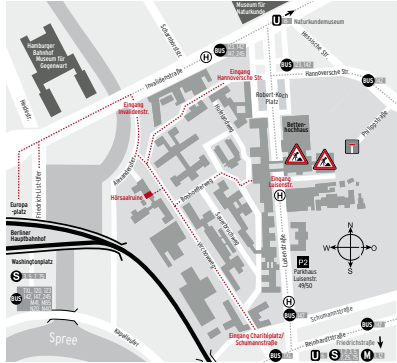

Location, Date

Signature

Venue

The Berlin Museum of Medical History, actually Virchow founded, former Pathological Museum, is situated on the campus of Charité Mitte. Hosting an extensive collection of 300 years medical history, the museum also offers the historical ruin of Virchow's auditorium, which will provide the perfect framework for the event.

Berlin Museum of Medical History
Historical Auditorium/Lecture Hall
Charitéplatz 1
D - 10117 Berlin

Choosing the Green Way
Sustainable Strategies in Cultural Heritage

Berlin Museum of Medical History

Partners

 Berliner
Medizinhistorisches
Museum der Charité
Berlin Museum of Medical History
www.bmm-charite.de

 VIRTENIO
smart wireless devices
Virtenio GmbH – smart wireless devices www.virtenio.com

 htw Hochschule für Technik und Wirtschaft Berlin
University of Applied Sciences

Introduction

Discussions about the responsibility for resource efficiency have gained high significance also for cultural heritage institutions and their multiple stakeholders. Specifically, costs and benefits of high energy consumptions, which are needed to climatize museums and historic buildings, are strongly focused within this context. A recognizable increase of projects and publications considering the topic as well as emerging administrative or technical solutions, demonstrate the need for in-depth research of the subject.

In particular, the approach to optimize energy consumptions of museums and collections by questioning often narrowly defined but required conservation standards, must lead to intense discussions and systematic research – before this option is implemented in the facilities. In fact, the causal relationship of outdoor climate, building envelope and indoor climate in museums and historic buildings is well understood. In contrast, there is still incomplete knowledge about the direct interference of highly sensitive object materials with distinctive climate fluctuations.

Cultural heritage institutions are willing to take on more responsibility for the use of resources. Therefore, the symposium will focus on the conditioning of museum climates, storage planning and management issues as well as on pollutant detection. Based on current research findings and following the symposium's title Choosing the Green Way the event will specifically enhance the discussion with innovative positions.

Programm and Invited Speakers

Currently the program is being compiled and will be published shortly at: <http://krg.htw-berlin.de/aktuelles-termine/green-way/>.

The event will be complemented by invited keynote speakers, who will enhance the program and discussions with overarching contributions and innovative positions.

Call for Student-posters

Since the symposium focusses on sustainability and resource efficiency regarding the future protection of cultural property, young researchers from Conservation Sciences as well as Natural and Engineering Sciences are specifically invited to contribute with posterabstracts and participate actively in the program and discussions.

Abstracts should not exceed one textpage (including tables, figures), clearly indicating the author/s, the institution/s and contact information. They should be provided with up to three keywords.

Please send in your contributions as MS-Word files and until February 8th 2015: Choosing-Green@htw-berlin.de

Organisation

Hochschule für Technik und
Wirtschaft Berlin
University of Applied Sciences Berlin www.krg.htw-berlin.de

Wilhelminenhofstraße 75a
D - 12459 Berlin

Contact Prof. Dr. Alexandra Jeberien,
Susanne Litty
Phone + 49 30 5019-3682
Mail choosing-green@htw-berlin.de

Registration and Fees

Registration will end on February 8th 2015 for early-bird registration 35 EUR (+ 15 EUR meet and greet) and on April 12th 2015 for regular registration 45 EUR (+ 15 EUR meet and greet).

To register, participants must fill in the registration form available below and return it including proof of payment to: Choosing-Green@htw-berlin.de

Confirmation of the registration will only be sent after payment, since all fees must be received prior to the symposium.

Registration fees include:

- › Satchel, including symposium abstracts
- › Morning and afternoon buffet offering hot/cold drinks and snacks
- › Access to Berlin Museum of Medical History exhibitions during symposium hours
- › Farewell meet and greet drinks

