

University of Brighton

Head of the School of Applied Social Science

With possibility of Professorial title for suitable candidate from £75,854 to £80,465 per annum

This is an opportunity for an outstanding social scientist to lead our dynamic multi-disciplinary school. With a background in any of the disciplines or professions in the school - sociology, social policy, applied psychology, criminology, politics, social work or psychotherapy and counselling - you will work with world leading academics to shape the future of the school through research leadership, pedagogic development and curriculum innovation.

In addition to high quality leadership, communication and management skills, you will have a track record of international research, scholarship and professional achievement and experience of leadership and management at a senior level. As part of the College of Social Sciences and you will have opportunities to foster inter-disciplinarity at the interface of the social sciences, the arts and humanities, and the natural sciences. You will have a commitment to enhancing the student experience and to building national and international partnerships for educational excellence.

For an informal discussion, contact Professor David Taylor, Dean of the College of Social Sciences on +44 (0)1273 643478 or via email at: d.taylor@brighton.ac.uk.

For more information or to apply for the post visit jobs.brighton.ac.uk - post reference HA3001

The post is based in the Mayfield Building, at the university's Falmer Campus in Brighton

Closing date: Wednesday 28 January 2015

Interviews will be held on Tuesday 24 February 2015