The Significance of Our Research: Influence and Impact

Tuesday 9 and Wednesday 10 June 2015 | York St John University, UK

This fifth annual conference aims to bring people together from around the world who are involved in practice-based forms of research, including action research, appreciative inquiry, narrative inquiry and participative inquiry. The theme of the 2015 conference is 'The Significance of Our Research: Influence and Impact'.

You are encouraged to think about the importance of evaluating the influence and impact of your research for yourself and others, and how you might assess this and show how you are contributing to new thinking and new practices. If you have something to say about these matters, this is the place for you!

Keynote presentations from:

Dr Tina Cook, Northumbria University & Professor Carol Munn-Giddings, Anglia Ruskin University

Damian McBeath, Executive Principal for Ark Conway, Ark Bentworth and Ark Swift Primary Academies, London

Professor Jean McNiff, York St John University

Professor Julian Stern, York St John University

Abstracts of approximately 300 words, including references if appropriate, are invited for submission by 2 March 2015 to valueandvirtue@yorks.ac.uk. Responses will be sent by mid March. Abstracts will be available electronically pre-conference and a selection of high quality papers will be published as a book of conference proceedings.

This year we are holding a pre-conference New and Early Career Researchers' Seminar (Monday 8 June 2015), with the same theme as the main conference and to include keynote presentations and practical workshops. Anyone beginning a practice-based project will find this useful to support their studies, as well as opportunities for networking.

For full details on the conference, including booking information, costs and how to submit an abstract, please visit www.yorks.ac.uk/value&virtue. Discounted rates are available for York St John staff and students.

We look forward to welcoming you!
