

Sex(y) Seminar Series

Northumbria University and the University of Sunderland are hosting two seminars aimed at 1st and 2nd year PhD students carrying out research related to studies into sex and sexuality!

The aim of the seminar is to provide PhD students with a friendly and fun platform to present at on their research.

Presentations will be 15 minutes long followed by a Q&A. Presentations can be on any parts of your project, including but not restricted to: a general introduction, methodology or a preliminary analysis of results.

This is a great opportunity for students studying in the field of sexualities to come together and network. There will also be 'experts in the field of sexualities' in the audience who you will be able to speak to and who can provide feedback on your projects during the Q&A.

Details of the first seminar are as follows:

Date: 30th April 2015

Venue: Northumbria Law School, Newcastle upon Tyne

Time: 13:00 – 17:00

For those wishing to present at the conference, please submit a 200 - 300 word abstract by 31st March 2015, on what you would like to present on including a brief bio of yourself to liam.wignall@research.sunderland.ac.uk

This is a free event to attend or present at. To register your attendance to the event or if you have any questions, please contact sara.mohammadzadeh@northumbria.ac.uk
