

University of Hertfordshire

Heritage Hub

Professional Doctorate in Heritage

A flexible and innovative cohort-based doctoral programme for professionals from a wide range of fields:

- tourism
- museums
- libraries and archives
- community history
- archaeology
- social and cultural sustainability
- management and organisation

www.herts.ac.uk/courses/doctorate-in-heritage
DHeritage@herts.ac.uk

The Professional Doctorate in Heritage (DHeritage) brings together the theory and practice of Heritage and Public History in a flexible and inter-disciplinary research degree.

The University of Hertfordshire is a pioneer of public history and community heritage in the UK. The University's Heritage Hub brings together heritage expertise from across the university and has built a network of charities, history societies, local authorities, museums and businesses.

Our Heritage Hub Fellows have contributed their expertise to the development of the DHeritage programme: from the BBC to the John Lewis Partnership, from the publishing industry to national museums.

- Study part-time to fit alongside work commitments
- Focus your research on relevant professional issues
- Benefit from being part of a cohort
- Take workshops on themes and debates in heritage and public history
- Develop the skills you need for being a doctoral researcher

www.herts.ac.uk/courses/doctorate-in-heritage

