St Helens libraries

IN YESTERDAY'S ECHO, we incorrectly stated that libraries in St Helens were first in the firing line for £23m cuts the council is having to make over the 2016/17 and 2017/18 period.

As part of a background briefing for journalists, the council's chief executive, Mike Palin, was asked by a journalist what the difference was between statutory and non-statutory services and used libraries as an example.

Although all service delivery will be under review, no decisions about where the cuts will fall have yet been taken. We are sorry for any misunderstanding, particularly to the staff concerned.
