

ONLINE COURSE:

AREA & INTERNATIONAL STUDIES LIBRARIANSHIP

OFFERED TO IU AND NON-IU STUDENTS

ILS-Z 604 Class 15368

This class will provide students the opportunity to explore issues related to area studies librarianship, focusing on COLLECTIONS, DISCOVERY, and ADVOCACY.

Topics include:

- history and current trends in the US
- collection development
- reference and instruction
- outreach
- partnerships and collaboration
- emerging technologies

Taught by librarians from the Area Studies Department of Indiana University Libraries. To learn more visit <https://libraries.indiana.edu/area-studies>.

Students will:

- Hear from prominent guest speakers from other institutions.
- Learn about important tools for working with area and international studies collections.
- Gain an understanding of the challenges and opportunities facing area studies librarianship.

Hardware requirements:

- webcam
- microphone and speakers
- high-speed internet

Appropriate for current library science students, practicing librarians, and those with subject expertise that are interested in librarianship.

For more information about the course, contact Marion Frank-Wilson at mfrank-wi@indiana.edu. For more information about registration, contact the ILS administrative office at ilsmain@indiana.edu or call (812) 855-2018.

