

SCIENCES PO IS RECRUITING AN ASSISTANT PROFESSOR (TENURE TRACK)

in Sociology, with a specialization in Sociology of Europe / Sociology of Globalization

November 2015

The Centre d'études européennes and the Department of Sociology have created this position for the purpose of strengthening the laboratory's research program on European integration and its effects on European states and societies.

JOB DESCRIPTION

Status: Assistant Professor with tenure track

Discipline: Sociology

Specialty: Sociology of Europe / Sociology of Globalization

DUTIES

Research

The applicant should have expertise in the comparative analysis of European societies or of the effects of globalization. No specific area is preferred at this stage. Candidates will have to demonstrate solid knowledge of sociological theory, comparative analysis, research methods, globalization debates and Europeanization. The candidate's research should be empirically grounded and use several research methods (general statistical methods, network analysis, longitudinal analysis, qualitative methods and textual analysis). Candidates at the beginning of their careers should be able to show growing international visibility through publications in major journals or with leading publishers, as well as participation in the most active and renowned international research networks. Interest in dialogue with other disciplines would be an additional advantage.

Teaching

Teaching duties are two 24-hour courses in French or English, as well as supplementary pedagogical activities (juries, dissertation advising, etc.) totalling 56 hours.

The selected candidate will also be expected to teach undergraduate courses in sociology or methodology at the Paris campus or at another regional campus, as well as graduate courses (for the Masters and PhD programs: Masters in European Affairs, PSIA, or other).

The candidate's ability to teach areas and subjects outside of the narrow limits of his/her research interests and his/her knowledge of current international debates in sociology will be particularly valued.

RESEARCH AT SCIENCES PO
