

A Learning Research Agenda for Natural History Institutions

Thursday 21 January 2016, 10.00-16.30

Flett Events Theatre, Natural History Museum

Cromwell Road, London SW7 5BD

Tickets £20 (includes lunch and refreshments)

This conference is the culmination of six seminars bringing together museum learning practitioners and cross-disciplinary academics to unpick the complexities of learning in rich natural history environments. The resulting learning research agenda has implications for bridging research and practice and describes the problems of practice we should address to understand impact in our field.

Confirmed speakers include: Amito Haarhuis, Deputy Director at NEMO Science Centre; Prof. Kevin Crowley, University of Pittsburgh; Dr Marianne Achiam, University of Copenhagen; Dr Emily Dawson, University College London; Dr Heather King, King's College London.
