SUPERDIVERSITY IN THE HEART OF EUROPE

HOW MIGRATION CHANGES OUR SOCIETY

The 21st century will be the century of superdiversity. Ethnic-cultural diversity in Europe continues to grow, even though governments try to limit further migration with a series of short-sighted measures.

How will superdiversity change our society? How can we all manage to live together in superdiversity? This book wants to redefine the deadlocked ideological debate about the desirability (or otherwise) of a multicultural society. In the 21st century, it is no longer a question of 'whether' we want such a society or not, but a question of 'how' we can deal with a superdiverse reality that is already upon us. How can we make best use of the potential inherent in this superdiversity and how can we avoid the pitfalls it entails?

DIRK GELDOLF is Lecturer in Sociology at the Faculty of Design Sciences at the University of Antwerp. He is also Lecturer in Sociology & Society and Researcher at the Higher Institute for Family Studies (Odisee University College Brussels) and Lecturer 'Diversity, Poverty and the City' and 'Migration' in the Social Work Program at the Karel de Grote University College in Antwerp.
