

Researching Social Inequality Across the Social Sciences: Contemporary Sociological Analyses of Power and Exclusion

Thursday 12th May 2016

University of Birmingham

Keynote speakers: David Gordon (University of Bristol)

Ann Phoenix (UCL Institute of Education)

Yvette Taylor (University of Strathclyde)

This one day event for postgraduate researchers will focus on key sociological approaches to the study of social inequality, with an emphasis on the cross-disciplinary use of theory and method to study power and its effects. This event aims to bring together researchers working within diverse fields spanning the social sciences, such as management and organizational studies, education, social and public policy, politics and international relations, gender studies, health and wellbeing studies, criminology, socio-legal studies, critical race studies, LGBT studies and cultural studies, all working around the common theme of social inequalities.

Following our keynote speakers, the afternoon's sessions will take the form of small interactive workshops focused on sharing and discussing postgraduate experiences of methodologies in social science research. Academic posters will be displayed throughout the day to provide further opportunity for networking and exploring commonalities in research themes and designs. The day will conclude with a drinks reception.

Registration Rates: BSA Member Registration: £10 Non-Member Registration: £25

Conference registration fee includes lunch, refreshments and wine reception.

Bookings are now open. Please click HERE if you would like to book your place.

For poster submissions and correspondence, please email: hch582@bham.ac.uk
Holly Henderson, School of Education, University of Birmingham

There are limited travel bursaries available for those travelling from beyond the West Midlands. Please email the address above to apply.