

13-15th April 2016
Broomlee Centre
Scottish Borders

THE UNIVERSITY of EDINBURGH
Moray House School of Education

Outdoor and Environmental Education Research Meet: Issues of Diversity and Communication

The Outdoor and Sustainability Education PhD Students of the University of Edinburgh invite PhD students and researchers to this 3-day seminar to present their research and/or join the workshops to discuss issues of diversity and communication in our field.

Focus?

What are contemporary topics in Outdoor, Environmental and Sustainability Education Research? How can diversifying research approaches overcome the methodological challenges researchers face? And how can we communicate our research effectively to professionals, teachers, researchers and the government?

With contributions from:

Simon Beames, Pete Higgins, Jamie Mcphie, Juliet Robertson, Roger Scrutton, John Telford and Natalie White – amongst others!

<http://oeers2016.weebly.com>

Broomlee Centre
West Linton
Scottish Borders
EH46 7BU

Where?

Broomlee is a centre for outdoor education set within more than 30 acres of grounds at the foot of the Pentland Hills and on the outskirts of the beautiful conservation village of West Linton.

Costs:

- 1) There are 25 subsidised places for the full seminar @£85 (incl. meals and accommodation) - book early to avoid disappointment folks!
- 2) There are additional places for the full seminar but if you're not in the first 25, it'll be @£120.
- 3) A one day incl. B&B (either the 13th or the 14th) is £60.
- 4) A one day incl. lunch but not dinner is £45.

Registration:

Places are limited so please email us to register your interest:

oeers2016@gmail.com

Application forms (available on the website) should be submitted to us via email with payment no later than 16th March 2016.

Those wishing to present their research should also send an abstract (250 word max) and biography (250 word max).