Letters from England

by Don Manuel Alvarez Espriella

Carol Bolton, Loughborough University, UK

Series: The Pickering Masters

Letters from England blurs the boundaries of fact and fiction to produce a complex work of literary merit – there is no other prose work of its kind during the Romantic period. Southey's commentary is shrewd and lively, and provides the reader with a close-up view of early nineteenth-century culture and society. Among the topics covered are: provincial customs; political intrigues; theatre and sports; religious sects; poverty and criminality in urban centres; scientific and medical progress; Georgian London; social change; and the state of the army and navy.
