

The first local ESSA@work workshop at the TU Delft will be held on February 7th and 8th, 2017!

PhD students and other researchers interested in Agent-Based Modeling and Simulation will have the opportunity to present and discuss current work in any stage with other participants as well as experienced experts. The spirit of this workshop is intended to be a supportive atmosphere where we can exchange and increase our knowledge.

Workshop outline (subject to change):

February 7th	February 8th
12h: Arrival and welcome at TU Delft	9h-12h: Project presentations
Afternoon: Project presentations (45 minutes, divided in 1/3 presentation, 1/3 feedback and 1/3 discussion)	Afternoon: Discussion groups on relevant methodological topics.
Evening: Social event, tbd

To apply, please send:

1. a half-page abstract of your project
2. a few keywords representative of your main research interests
3. your main questions and/or difficulties with your current project

to Julia Eberlen: Julia.Eberlen@ulb.ac.be

This will help us to organize the workshop as well as the discussion groups.

It is also possible to participate without presenting your own project. In this case, please let us know that you want to attend and specify – if desired – what topics you are interested in.

Extended and final submission deadline: Monday, January 23rd

Fees: The Workshop itself is free of cost for all Participants. However, the event does not include meals, accommodation or travel cost.

Once we know your (common) research interests and questions, we will contact you with more details concerning the outline of the workshop, the discussion groups, as well as the location, social event etc.

We are looking forward to meeting you all in Delft!

Your organizers Rijk Mercuur & Julia Eberlen

Please visit <http://www.essa.eu.org> for more information on ESSA, or contact info@essa.eu.org directly!