

An example of use of perforated air vents around trees when raising ground levels

