

Bespoke package for all UK FE institutions

AM explorer

Access millions of pages of historical material with AM Explorer and equip your students with essential primary source research skills for FE and beyond.

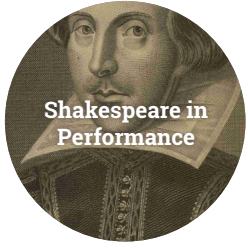

Use AM Explorer to transform your students' primary source research:

- ✔ Browse award-winning collections, developed in collaboration with leading libraries, archives and academics from around the world, all from one easily accessible portal
- ✔ Utilise bespoke features, such as interactive maps, chronologies and contextual essays to discover multiple pathways into primary sources
- ✔ Explore over 500 years of historical material with in-built federated search functionality across all collections
- ✔ Leverage the latest technology including Handwritten Text Recognition and data visualisation to enhance teaching and learning

Explore a range of primary sources across the Humanities and Social Sciences

Shakespeare in Performance

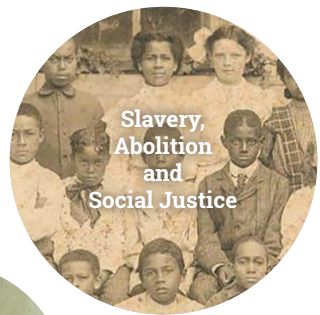

Victorian Popular Culture

Mass Observation Online

Socialism on Film

Slavery, Abolition and Social Justice

China: Trade, Politics and Culture

Eighteenth Century Journals

Popular Culture in Britain and America

The new gateway to millions of pages of primary sources, spans the 15th to 21st centuries, with new collections added every year.

AM explorer

Collections include:

Empire Online

First World War: A Global Conflict

East India Company

Gender Identity and Social Change

Foreign Office Files sourced from The National Archives, UK

London Low Life

American History: 1493 - 1945

AM Adam Matthew
Primary sources for teaching and research

Who are Adam Matthew Digital?

Adam Matthew Digital are a publisher of carefully curated digital primary source collections.

Our unique digital collections, covering the Humanities and Social Sciences, empower students and academics to take control of and direct their own research.

Developed by dedicated editorial teams, and through the innovative use of technology, our collections bring the world's leading archives and libraries to academic communities across the globe.

For more information:
www.amdigital.co.uk