

Joint Call for Papers: EATAW 2019

The tenth EATAW conference offers two publication opportunities: a conference issue of the Journal of Academic Writing (JoAW) containing articles and shorter pieces, and a WAC Clearinghouse book comprised of full-length chapters and reflections.

JoAW conference issue

Selected papers from the EATAW 2019 conference will be published in a special issue of JoAW, EATAW's international, peer-reviewed journal that focuses on the teaching, tutoring, researching, administration and development of academic writing in higher education in Europe: <http://e-learning.coventry.ac.uk/ojs/index.php/joaw>. JoAW is relevant to teachers, scholars, and programme managers across disciplines and across the world who are interested in conducting, debating and learning from research into best practices in the teaching of writing. This issue will be guest edited by Magnus Gustafsson and Andreas Eriksson (Chalmers University of Technology, Sweden), with support from Lisa Ganobcsik-Williams and George Ttoouli (Coventry University, England).

EATAW 2019 presenters may submit scholarly papers for consideration. Submissions should be in the form of a 5,000-word journal article (excluding references and graphics) and should reflect the themes and content covered in your conference presentation. Papers can be theoretical, empirical, or experience-based, but must offer an explicit original contribution, refer to existing debates or issues, and demonstrate an appropriate methodology or approach.

Shorter pieces appropriate for the following journal sections are also welcome:

Teaching practice: The 10-minute presentations on teaching-related designs, development or experience from EATAW2019 can be written up in order to share them with JoAW readers.

Posters: Posters from EATAW2019 providing visual presentations on specific topics, small-scale projects, or research work still in progress may be submitted as PDF files. All poster submissions should be accompanied by an explanatory text of c. 500 words to provide background as well as follow-up from the conference.

Dialogues: JoAW publishes dialogue pieces and invites responses. If you are interested in initiating a dialogue or pursuing a hot button from the conference, please submit:

- a short abstract (max 50 words);
- a focused, limited bibliography, to draw out the context;
- a brief manuscript (maximum 750 words).

Edited book: *Academic Writing at Intersections in Europe

This edited collection will be the first book-length publication produced in connection with the biennial EATAW conference. Edited by Magnus Gustafsson and Andreas Eriksson (Chalmers University of Technology, Sweden), Academic Writing at Intersections in Europe will be featured as part of the WAC Clearinghouse 'International Exchanges on the Study of Writing Series' (Series Editors Terry Zawacki, Joan Mullin, and Magnus Gustafsson).

The book will serve as a conference collection for longer pieces from the 10th EATAW conference in 2019, and potentially as an account of EATAW's early steps and its development. The Call for Chapters will also be distributed via the EATAW listserv. Overview contributions, reflections, and invited chapters from former EATAW Board members, previous conference organisers, and founding members may be solicited in addition to chapters arising from the conference. Adding this historical element to the book may mean dividing it into sections (past, present, future). The editors expect to structure the collection based on contributions and provide section introductions to guide readers throughout the book.

The editors are seeking 10-12 book-length chapters of approximately 8,000-10,000 words, which will be framed by an Introduction and a Closing Reflection. Chapters may be descriptive pieces, theoretically-oriented work, or empirical studies. Chapters must be written in English but first-language material may be used in analysis.

Call for Papers

This is a joint Call for Papers, and submissions will be reviewed by the Editors and JoAW's review board through an anonymous peer review process. All contributions will be submitted to the JoAW system, and authors will have the possibility to indicate which of the publications they consider their contribution is appropriate for. Editors may suggest moving contributions between the two publications.

There will be a two-step submission process:

1. For all submission types, the first step is to submit an abstract (between 200-400 words) outlining your proposed contribution. The closing date for abstract submissions is September 30th 2019. The abstract submissions will be used for screening and for distributing contributions between the two publications.
2. If your abstract is accepted, the submission deadline for full manuscripts for consideration and peer review is December 31st 2019.

The submission platform in JoAW will be updated with criteria derived from the conference criteria for the special conference issue of JoAW as well as for the book publication.

Details of the submission process and further author guidelines will be available at <http://e-learning.coventry.ac.uk/ojs/index.php/joaw/about/submissions#onlineSubmissions>.

For now, the original submission criteria for EATAW2019 serve to indicate features that will be evaluated in the screening and review processes.
